Pre-requisites: ECON1001 / ECON1210 Introduction to Economics I (Introductory Microeconomics) or equivalent

Students are presumed to have taken Intermediate-level Microeconomic Theory or Microeconomic Analysis. Those who have not taken intermediate microeconomics will find it difficult to follow the analytical components of the course (such as using indifference curve analysis of leisure-goods choice, Laffer curve, General Equilibrium and Welfare Economics under the Tools of Normative Analysis chapter, Multiple Taxes and the Theory of the Second Best under the Taxation and Efficiency chapter, and Ramsey inverse elasticity rule under the topic of Optimal Commodity Taxation). Students should have been exposed to Introductory Macroeconomics in addition to Introductory Microeconomics. Basic calculus is used in several places in the course but will not be emphasized in examinations. While calculus is not required for exam purposes, some mathematics background and the willingness to learn are needed to fully benefit from the course.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Study of the role of government in the economy using microeconomics. The course covers public expenditure analysis and methods of financing government expenditures. It explores the underlying theory of welfare economics as well as the economic effects of public policy such as public sector pricing, expenditure and tax policies.

As part of the writing component, you are required to submit a typewritten mini-paper (of no more than 2,000 words in Word) based on your individual work both in hard and soft copies in response to the annual budget speech delivered by the Financial Secretary. This year’s Budget Speech is expected to be delivered by Mr. Paul CHAN Mo-po, JP, Financial Secretary at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, February 22nd, 2017 during this term’s Week 5. You are to critically analyze certain aspects of the 2017-18 Budget of the HKSAR Government such as selected tax or expenditure item(s) by applying public microeconomic principles, developing economic intuition and reasoning, and learning effective writing. The Budget mini-paper is due in class on Friday, April 7th, 2017, Week 10. A 1-hour term test is scheduled for Friday, March 24th, 2017, during the first hour.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. To learn the underpinnings of public sector economics using microeconomic theories, analytical and graphical tools;
2. To study public expenditure analysis and methods of financing government expenditures, the underlying theory of welfare economics as well as the economic effects of public policy such as public sector pricing, expenditure and tax policies.
3. To apply microeconomic principles to public economic issues and problems, develop one’s economic reasoning, hone one’s economic intuition and build one’s effective writing.
